Inspiration:

The idea came about when looking at a twisted pipe, which otherwise is a basic amenity in dull metal, but by adding the brass finish, it comes into an identity of its own. It further evolved from an ugly duckling metamorphosing into a beautiful curved neck swan, taking the cue from the masterful tuba's conical bell shape. It needed to be complemented with an equally eye-catching top, denoting the lips of a woman with blood red lips playing the tuba. Whereas the eye on the top juxtaposes onto the centre of the underlying cone base holding the table top, as though looking through the tuba. All the elements come together like the essence of the tuba that anchors the harmony for the whole band with its deep rich sound.
